

Commercial Real Estate Analyst
London
£40,000–£45,000 + Commission
Vacancy ID: 010172

This is a market intelligence role within a respected London workplace contractor, ideal for someone who enjoys working with data, tracking market activity and helping shape future project opportunities.

You will join a £100M+ turnover fit out specialist with an international presence and a strong reputation for delivering high quality workplace projects. The role sits within the design and build division and supports the business development team by building accurate, timely market knowledge.

What You'll Do

You will research the London commercial property market, tracking lease events, company movements and organisational changes that could lead to future projects.

You will maintain and update the CRM system, ensuring contacts, companies and opportunities are recorded accurately.

You will gather information from industry sources, databases and online tools, building a clear picture of where future work is likely to come from.

When potential opportunities appear, you will flag them to the sales team at the right time so they can make contact while conversations are still early.

You will also monitor job moves and new hires, helping the business stay aware of changes that could lead to new workplace requirements.

Over time, you will become a key source of knowledge within the team, helping shape the pipeline of future work.

What You'll Get

You will receive a salary between £40,000 and £45,000 plus commission.

You will work for a recognised market leader delivering prestigious workplace projects, giving you exposure to high profile schemes.

You will be part of a grown up, professional culture where people are trusted to perform and good work is recognised.

The business offers training, clear promotion prospects and the stability of an established contractor with international reach, along with healthcare and a competitive benefits package.

What You'll Need

You will have strong attention to detail and a data driven approach.

You should be confident using online tools to find information and comfortable working with CRM systems.

You must be able to stay organised, manage multiple tasks and work under pressure.

An interest in the commercial property or construction market will be helpful, along with the curiosity to keep building knowledge over time.

About the Company

You will be joining a London based workplace fit out contractor with turnover exceeding £100M and an international presence.

The business delivers complex, high quality projects through design and build teams and specialist divisions, and has built a strong reputation for reliability, delivery and long term client relationships.

The culture is professional, performance driven and supportive, with experienced leadership and clear plans for continued growth.
