

Project Manager

London

£80,000–£110,000 plus package

Vacancy ID: 010141

This role is for an experienced Project Manager who wants real ownership of delivery, the trust to lead projects properly, and the chance to influence how work gets done. You'll be joining a growing London based contractor with a professional, grown up culture.

What You'll Do

You'll lead workplace fit out projects from appointment through to completion, managing clients, consultants and the supply chain. You'll control risk, drive programme, manage design coordination, and maintain standards on site.

You'll contribute to tender submissions and interviews, then take responsibility for delivery once appointed. You'll manage site set up, chair meetings, issue actions, and ensure defect free delivery is achieved.

Programming, commercial awareness and communication will sit at the heart of your role. You'll manage information flow, sub contractor performance, prelims expenditure, and health and safety. You'll build strong, long term client relationships through consistent, reliable delivery.

What You'll Get

You'll join a growing, well run contractor that values experience and judgement. You'll be trusted to do your job properly, with influence within your team and clear opportunities to progress as the business expands.

The culture is professional and straightforward, with autonomy, accountability and support. You'll be based in central London with one day per week working from home.

What You'll Need

You'll be an experienced Project Manager within commercial fit out or design and build, comfortable running projects end to end. You'll be organised, commercially aware, and confident dealing with clients and supply chains. A trade background would be advantageous.

About the Company

You'll be joining a respected London based workplace contractor delivering high quality commercial fit out projects. The business operates across multiple delivery teams and continues to grow both in the UK and internationally.
